Better Regulation in the EU revisited

Benefiting Business and Citizens

While the European institutions have already worked on better regulation extensively since at least 1992, the T.M.C. Asser Instituut has itself convened a high-profile conference on this topic back in 1997. Nearly two decades later, better regulation and quality of legislation remain pertinent for tackling the EU's economic, social and environmental challenges.

The '50 Years of Asser' EU Law Symposium brings together policy makers from Union institutions and Member States with academics and practitioners for a discussion of the way forward in enhancing EU legislation in ways that are efficient, sustainable and uphold basic legal values of the EU and the Member States.
