

Editors and Contributors

About the Editors

Christophe Paulussen is a Senior Researcher international humanitarian law/international criminal law and Coordinator of the public international law cluster at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in The Hague, Coordinator of the Inter-Faculty Research Platform ‘International Humanitarian and Criminal Law Platform’ and Research Fellow at the International Centre for Counter-Terrorism—The Hague. Christophe is also a member of the editorial boards of the journal Security and Human Rights and the Yearbook of International Humanitarian Law, member of the Executive Board of the Royal Netherlands Society of International Law and a jury member of the J.P.A. François Prize (Royal Netherlands Society of International Law). In addition to this, Christophe has been involved as project leader in the development and implementation of numerous lectures, conferences, databases, including the International Crimes Database (www.internationalcrimesdatabase.org), trainings, and needs assessment and capacity building missions in public international law-related projects.

Tamara Takács is a Senior Researcher in EU law and Coordinator of the EU law cluster at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in The Hague, and Academic Programme Coordinator of CLEER (Centre for the Law of EU External Relations). Previously she was Assistant Professor in EU law at the Europa Instituut Faculty of Law, Utrecht University (2009–2011), where she taught courses on European institutional law, law of the EU (including Internal Market, Competition) and international economic law (WTO law). Tamara was Adjunct Associate Professor at the American University Washington College of Law (Spring 2011) teaching a course on European Union law. A Hungarian national, she obtained her law degree at the University of Pécs, received a research master degree in European law (D.E.A.) from the Université Nancy 2, and wrote her Ph.D. at Utrecht University and the T.M.C. Asser Instituut.

Vesna Lazić is a Senior Researcher in private international law and international commercial arbitration and Coordinator of the Private International Law cluster at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in The Hague and Associate Professor at Utrecht University. In 2013 she was appointed Professor of EU Civil Procedure at the University of Rijeka. Dispute settlement, especially international litigation and commercial arbitration, private international law, insolvency and commercial law are the fields of her particular interest and expertise.

Ben Van Rompuy is a Senior Researcher in International and European Sports Law at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in The Hague and coordinator of the ASSER International Sports Law Centre. In addition, Ben is Guest Professor of Competition Policy at the Vrije Universiteit Brussel (VUB). His research focuses primarily on the application of EU (competition) law in the sports and media sectors. He obtained his Ph.D. in law from the VUB with a thesis on the role of non-efficiency considerations under Article 101 TFEU (published by Wolters Kluwer Law & Business in 2012). Ben has been a visiting scholar at Georgetown University Law Center and New York University. He is a member of the editorial board of The International Sports Law Journal, the ASSER International Sports Law Series and the Information Technology and Law Series.

Contributors

Richard Blauwhoff is a Senior Legal Counsel at the Internationaal Juridisch Instituut in The Hague, a research institute and consultancy specialised in matters of Dutch and foreign private international law and foreign private and procedural law. He studied international and European public law at Utrecht University. His law studies generally centered on human rights and European law. Richard also studied history of international relations and Portuguese language and literature at Utrecht University. At the same university he defended his Ph.D. in 2009 in the field of comparative family law, for which he was awarded the Dutch German Jurists Prize and the Erasmus Study Prize. Part of his comparative law research was spent in Coimbra, Lyon and Marburg. Richard's working experience at the Internationaal Juridisch Instituut is focused on private international law, family law and contract law. Richard was one of the authors of the Report on Lay Justice (2007) for the Dutch Council for the Judiciary and one of the authors of the study conducted on the request of the European Parliament, A European framework for private international law: current gaps and future perspectives, Study IP/C/JURI/IC/2012-009. He also is the author of various publications on human rights, international family law and private international law.

Jessica Dorsey is a Researcher at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in the areas of international humanitarian law, international human rights law and international criminal law and a Research Fellow at the International Centre for Counter-Terrorism—The Hague. Originally from the United States, she received her J.D. in 2008 while concentrating on international and comparative law (with distinction), before completing her LL.M. (cum laude) in public international law in 2010. After her studies, she worked on various legal research projects as well as on a human rights initiative for the Municipality of Utrecht. In 2011, she was a junior lecturer at the Utrecht University School of Law, where she taught general international law and comparative human rights. Jessica also teaches international humanitarian law and international criminal law during a summer field studies program with Duke University in the US. She is also the Editorial Assistant for the Yearbook of International Humanitarian Law, an Assistant Editor for the international law weblog Opinio Juris and she collaborated on a project for the United Nations Special Rapporteur on Human Rights and Counter Terrorism investigating the civilian impact of the use of drones. She has also made a name for herself in the use of social media in legal research.

Wybe Th. Douma is Senior Research Fellow European law and international trade law at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in The Hague. He has lectured on European law, European and international environmental law and issues of sustainable development, Dutch administrative and economic law and international trade law at the University of Groningen and the T.M.C. Asser Instituut, at numerous universities in the EU and its neighbouring countries, South America and Asia. He was team leader and Senior Legal Expert in a wide range of legal projects, seconded to the legal departments of several Dutch ministries for extensive periods and worked on numerous other projects dealing mainly with the relationship between national and European law. He publishes frequently on a variety of Dutch, European and international law issues. He is an editor for two Dutch law journals, a board member of the Centre for the EU Law on External Relations (CLEER), a member of the editorial board of the Proceedings of the Estonian Academy of Security Sciences and on the board of referees of the Lisbon Law Review.

Antoine Duval is a Senior Researcher International and European Sports law at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in The Hague. He holds a Ph.D. in law from the European University Institute in Florence and studied political science and law in Paris, Toronto and Cologne. His main research interest lies in the study of the emergence of transnational law in the field of sport. He has recently published on the notion of lex sportiva, on the Court of Arbitration for Sport and the application of EU law in a sporting context.

Lisette Frohn is Senior Legal Counsel at the Internationaal Juridisch Instituut in The Hague, a research institute and consultancy specialized in matters of Dutch and foreign private international law and foreign private and procedural law. She studied law at the Vrije Universiteit in Amsterdam. Her working experience (consultancy and lectures) is focused on family law, including the law of succession, procedural law and contracts. She is Secretary of the Dutch Standing Commission on Private International Law. In that capacity she was involved in the codification of Dutch private international law in Book 10 Civil Code. She is a member of the Advisory Commission on matters of civil status and nationality. She is a member of the editorial board of NIPR (Nederlands Internationaal Privaatrecht) and of the editorial board of FJR (Tijdschrift voor Familie- en Jeugdrecht). Lisette is the author of many publications on private international law, mostly on family law and the law of succession, but her publications also include topics such as general principles of private international law and commercial law. She was one of the authors of the Report on Lay Justice (2007) for the Dutch Council for the Judiciary and one of the authors of the Study conducted on request of the European Parliament, A European framework for private international law: current gaps and future perspectives, Study IP/C/JURI/IC/2012-009.

Onur Güven is a Researcher public international law at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in The Hague. His research fields include international arms control and disarmament law, collective security law, international humanitarian law, the law of treaties, and general public international law. He studied law at Utrecht University and holds an LL.M. in Public International Law. He worked as a legal counsel in contract and labour dispute settlements, before joining the Asser Institute in 2012. Furthermore, Onur works on the design, writing and implementation of research projects. His main research interest concerns the destructive creativity of crisis and conflict in the development of international law.

Davor Jancic is a Senior Researcher in EU law at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in The Hague. He was previously a British Academy Newton Fellow at the Law Department of the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE), UK, working on several postdoc research projects in the fields of EU institutional law, EMU reform, EU foreign affairs and EU transatlantic relations. Davor holds a Ph.D. in European constitutional law from Utrecht University. His doctorate analysed the role of national parliaments in EU decision-making processes. He obtained his LL.M. in International and European Law cum laude from the University of Amsterdam and his LL.B. summa cum laude from the University of Novi Sad. Davor has also been a Visiting Scholar at the Centre for European Studies of Sciences Po Paris (2009), LSE Law Department (2009), Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence of the University of Lisbon (2010) and the Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law in Heidelberg (2011–2012). In 2011, he won the Europe Award for Junior Academics from the Montesquieu Institute, The Hague.

James A.R. Nafziger is Thomas B. Stoel Professor of Law and Director of International Law Programs at the Willamette University College of Law. He is the former President and Chair of the executive committee of the American branch of the International Law Association (ILA) and former Co-Director of Studies at the Hague Academy of International Law. He currently serves on the ILA's Executive Council and is Secretary of the American Society of International Law and Honorary President of the International Association of Sports Law. James has taught and written extensively in diverse fields of international and comparative law and has authored or edited a dozen books, including International Sports Law, Handbook on International Sports Law and Transnational Law of Sports.

Sacha Prechal has been a Judge at the Court of Justice of the European Union since 2010. She studied law at the University of Groningen (1977–83) and she holds a Ph.D. in law from the University of Amsterdam (1995). She started her professional career as Lecturer in the law faculty of the University of Maastricht (1983–87). Between 1987 and 1991 she was Legal Secretary at the Court of Justice of the European Communities and then again Lecturer at the Europa Institute of the law faculty of the University of Amsterdam (1991–95). In 1995 Sacha was appointed Professor of European law in the law faculty of the University of Tilburg and in 2003 Professor of European law in the law faculty of the University of Utrecht. Since 1 January 2012 she holds this position as Honorary Professor. She is a member of the editorial or advisory board of several national and international legal journals and a member of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences. Sacha is the author of numerous publications on EU law, in particular on judicial protection in the EU, on various aspects of the relationship between EU law and national law, on general principles/fundamental rights, on EU anti-discrimination law and on problems related to EU directives.

Olivier Ribbelink is a Senior Researcher at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in The Hague, where he served as Head of the Research Department from 2000 until 2010, and Associate Professor at Utrecht University's School of Law (2010–present). He studied international relations and international law at the University of Amsterdam, where he obtained his Ph.D. with a thesis on succession of international organisations. From 1987 until 1997, he was a lecturer in international law at the University of Amsterdam. Inter alia, he was the project-coordinator of the 2007 Handbook International Law, and Head of the Research Team of the AGIS project on the European Arrest Warrant for the European Commission. He is a Board Member of the Netherlands School of Human Rights Research, and of the International Justice Foundation. From 1992–2008 Olivier served as Secretary-General of the Alumni Association of the Hague Academy of International Law. He is a member of several editorial and advisory boards of international publications. His areas of interest include inter alia general international law, international institutional law, state succession, and the law of outer space.

Steven Stuij is Researcher in private international law at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut. He completed his law studies at the Erasmus University in Rotterdam. After working a short period as a research assistant for the latter institution, he joined the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in October 2010. Steven is currently writing a Ph.D. thesis on the procedural status of foreign law in the context of European private international law. In the course of his Ph.D. research, Steven has been a Van Calker visiting scholar at the Swiss Institute of Comparative Law in Lausanne, Switzerland, during February and March 2012. He is also involved with consultancy work in private international law issues and with training and research projects. Finally, Steven documents case law and legal literature for the Dutch private international law review Nederlands Internationaal Privaatrecht.

Kinga Tibori-Szabó currently works as a Legal Adviser for the Legal Representative of Victims at the Special Tribunal for Lebanon and as an independent legal consultant in public international law and international criminal law. Kinga is also a qualified attorney in the State of New York, USA. Her monograph, Anticipatory Action in Self-Defence (T.M.C. Asser Press, 2011) won the 2012 Francis Lieber Prize of the American Society of International Law.

Marco van der Harst is a Researcher and Ph.D. Candidate in international and European sports law at the T.M.C. Asser Instituut in The Hague. His research focuses primarily on the private law enforcement of EU (competition) law (i.e. the effective protection of EU (competition) law as an EU public policy exception) with regard to the unchartered territory of national courts' enforcement proceedings of foreign arbitral awards rendered by the Court of Arbitration for Sport. Marco is a member of the editorial board of the ASSER International Sports Law Series.

Steffen van der Velde studied international and European law at the University of Groningen. Before graduating in 2009, he spent a summer at the University of Oslo, Norway, where he took courses in human rights law and European competition law. In February 2011, Steffen joined the T.M.C. Asser Instituut as Researcher EU law, in which capacity he is writing his Ph.D. dealing with the integration of the concept of sustainable development into future EU FDI policy, with a focus on investment in the mining sector of developing countries. Steffen combines the academic activities with consultancy activities, working on numerous 'EU environmental law' projects for the Dutch ministries and EU institutions.