

Conference: One year after the Arab Spring : The European Union's relations with the Southern-Mediterranean region

Universidad Pablo de Olavide, Seville, Spain

10-11 May 2012

The conference explores the EU's response to the events of the Arab Spring, and its reframed policy toward the Southern-Mediterranean region to deliver support for transition to democracy and work closely with partner governments.

Tools of cooperation to be discussed include :

- ◆ The 2011 review of the European Neighbourhood;
- ◆ The EU's ties with the region: ad hoc, bilateral and multilateral approaches;
- ◆ Select issues of Europe's Mediterranean strategy: political dialogue, democracy building and economic integration.

Organisers: Universidad Pablo de Olavide, Centre for the Law of EU External Relations (CLEER) and T.M.C. Asser Instituut

Venue: Universidad Pablo de Olavide, Seville, Spain

Fee: Participation is free of charge. However, registration is necessary. Registrations to be submitted at www.asser.nl/seville2012
