
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface	V
Acknowledgements	VII
Contributors	XV
List of Abbreviations	XVII

Chapter 1

Lost in translation? On the role of national constitutions in the European constitutional order	1
Fabian Amtenbrink and Peter A.J. van den Berg

1. The constitutional integrity of the state	1
2. Constitutional integrity in denationalising legal orders	3
3. Constitutional integrity in the European Union	7
4. This edited volume's contribution to the debate	10

Chapter 2

The integrative function of constitutions: A historical perspective	13
Peter A.J. van den Berg

1. Constitutions as instruments of state building	13
2. The Batavian Revolution of 1795: Democratic and patriotic	19
3. State formative practices and the Dutch Constitution of 1798	22
3.1 Ideological integration	22
3.1.a In search of a people	22
3.1.b Fundamental rights	29
3.1.c Citizenship	34
3.2 Integration in specific fields	37
3.2.a Territorial and administrative integration	37
3.2.b Financial integration	40
3.2.c Economic and social integration	43
3.2.d Legal integration	45
4. Lessons to be learned	47

*Chapter 3History decides? Lessons from the constitutional debates in the Frankfurt Parliament of 1848 55*Rik Peters*

- | | | |
|-----|-----------------------------------|----|
| 1. | Integration through deliberation | 55 |
| 2. | Frankfurt 1848 | 58 |
| 2.1 | Association: The Duchy of Limburg | 60 |
| 2.2 | Demarcation: Poznan | 65 |
| 2.3 | Separation: Trentino | 67 |
| 3. | Lessons learned | 69 |

*Chapter 4Europe and the constitutional legal model in the light of political law 73*Olivier Camy*

- | | | |
|----|--|----|
| 1. | Introduction | 73 |
| 2. | The nature of the constitutional legal model | 75 |
| 3. | European law facing the contradictions of the constitutional legal model | 80 |
| 4. | Conclusion | 86 |

*Chapter 5Lost in transition? From domestic integration through national constitutions to supranational integration through European constitutionalism 89*Sergio Dellavalle*

- | | | |
|-----|---|-----|
| 1. | Introduction | 89 |
| 2. | Contents of the concept of 'constitution' and its integrative function | 91 |
| 2.1 | The 'constitution' as definition of the competences of public power and of its organisation | 91 |
| 2.2 | The 'constitution' as protection of the rights of the individuals | 93 |
| 2.3 | The 'constitution' as normative guarantee of the legitimation of public power | 94 |
| 2.4 | The 'constitution' as foundation of the identity of the political community | 96 |
| 3. | Recent development of EU primary law, in particular with regard to constitutional integration | 97 |
| 3.1 | The primary law of the EU as the definition of the competences of the European public power and of its organisation | 97 |
| 3.2 | The primary law of the EU as the guarantee of an adequate protection of fundamental rights | 100 |
| 3.3 | The primary law of the EU as the normative guarantee of the legitimation of the Union's public power | 102 |
| 3.4 | The primary law of the EU as the foundation of the identity of the European political community | 104 |
| 4. | The Lisbon Treaty: A rejection of the European constitution and a part of European constitutionalism | 105 |

5.	Is social integration possible beyond the national constitutional identity?	107
5.1	The doctrine of ‘counterlimits’ of the Italian Corte Costituzionale	107
5.2	The defense of citizenry by the Spanish Tribunal Constitucional	108
5.3	Pouvoir constituant and supranational integration in the adjudication of the Conseil Constitutionnel	109
5.4	The substantive understanding of the national identity and the limits to the supranational integration set by the Bundesverfassungsgericht	110
6.	Conclusion	115

Chapter 6

The relationship between the European and the national legislatures from the perspective of constitutional integrity 117

Ton van den Brink

1.	Introduction	117
2.	Dealing with national discretion in EU legislation	119
2.1	Type of legal instrument as an indication for national discretion?	122
2.2	Legal basis as an indication for national discretion?	125
2.3	The legal instrument itself?	127
2.4	National discretion under ex post scrutiny by the ECJ	127
2.5	Gold plating	128
2.6	National discretion in EU legislation and constitutional integrity	130
3.	Pursuing constitutional integrity at the national level: A case study on Dutch attempts to speed up the EU implementation process	131
4.	The legislative function after ‘Lisbon’	136
4.1	A coherent set of legal acts	137
4.2	Legislative procedure	137
4.3	Legislation and regulation	138
4.4	Legislative acts	139
4.5	Delegated acts and implementing acts	140
4.6	National and European legislative power converging after Lisbon?	142
5.	Conclusions	144

Chapter 7

The humiliation of the state as a constitutional tactic 147

Gareth Davies

1.	Introduction	147
2.	Second-class citizens	148
2.1	Rights for migrants	148
2.2	Substantive equality and beyond	149
2.3	A remedy worse than the disease?	155
2.4	The humiliation of the state	159
3.	The right to opt out	165
4.	The threat of abandonment	172
5.	Conclusions	173

*Chapter 8The right stuff? On the transformation of the protection of rights 175
Thomas Bull

1.	Fundamental rights in EU law: In search of gains and losses	175
2.	Test case: Freedom of expression	176
3.	Protection of rights in the EU	178
4.	Freedom of expression in Community courts	181
4.1	Expression and the internal market	181
4.2	Confidentiality and freedom of expression	184
4.3	Carry your load	187
4.4	Data protection, privacy and access to information	189
4.5	Copy, right?	194
4.6	Commercial speech	195
5.	Concluding remarks	199

*Chapter 9The constitutionality of competition. European internal market law and the fine line between markets, public interests, and self-regulation in a changing constitutional setting 201
Hans Vedder

1.	Introduction	201
2.	The constitutional context of the EU internal market rules	207
2.1	Legality	208
2.2	Legitimacy	210
3.	The internal market rules	211
3.1	An overview of the internal market rules	211
3.1.a	The fundamental freedoms	212
3.1.b	The rules on distortions of the conditions of competition	214
3.1.c	The rules on distortions of competition	215
3.2	Top-down, bottom-up, and legislative influences on the internal market	220
4.	Case studies on the fine line between markets, public interests, and self-regulation	222
4.1	The free movement of capital and universal services	222
4.2	Article 106(2) TFEU and compensation of costs of public service obligations	225
4.3	The useful effect doctrine and partial self-regulation	230
5.	Of constitutions, capture, competition, and democracy	234

*Chapter 10The integrity of European criminal law co-operation: The nation state, the individual, and the area of freedom, security, and justice 237
Ester Herlin-Karnell

1.	Introduction	237
2.	The notion of European criminal law	238

2.1	Why criminal law mutual recognition?	241
3.	The function of trust: How the EU legitimises the phenomenon of 'EU criminal law co-operation'	243
3.1	The difficulties with trust	246
3.2	Trusting trust	246
4.	Non-discrimination, Union citizenship and the AFSJ: What are the answers sought with regard to the losses caused by supranational involvement?	249
4.1	Freedom and trust	251
4.2	Security as trust?	254
4.3	Short comment on concrete examples of losses at the Member State level: The legislative domain	255
4.4	Justice: Or why Solange cannot be trusted	257
5.	A regional model: A possible solution	259
6.	Conclusion	261
7.	Postscript	262
	Index	263