

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface		VII
List of Abbreviations		XIII
Introduction		1
Chapter 1
Principles and Characteristics of the International Law of Trust Funds		11
1.1	Introduction	11
1.2	The concept of an international trust fund	12
1.2.1	Brief historical survey of pertinent domestic concepts	13
1.2.2	Trusts in international legal parlance	16
1.3	Trust funds versus traditional notions of sovereignty	19
1.4	The sources of international trust fund law	21
1.5	The foundational normative characteristics of international trust funds	24
a)	Trusts under international law are based on agreement	25
b)	The trust does not create rights or obligations for third parties	27
c)	No beneficiary right of action against the trustee	28
d)	The trustee is not an agent or proxy of the donor(s)	29
e)	The trustee possesses implied powers	31
f)	Trust funds may possess, but do not necessarily require, distinct legal personality	32
g)	The assets of the trust fund are in the trust ownership of the trustee	33
h)	The trust is by necessity an interventionist measure	35
1.6	Sovereign wealth funds	36
1.7	Investment considerations	39
1.7.1	International law trust funds as investment vehicles	39
1.7.2	International funds subject to private law: the European Investment Fund	44
1.7.3	Islamic finance law and trust fund investment policies	45
1.8	Are international trusts arbitrable as opposed to their domestic law counterparts?	46
1.8.1	The practice of trust fund dispute settlement	48
1.9	Pledges, commitments and replenishments	51
1.9.1	The legal nature of donors' pledges	52
1.9.2	Trust funds' replenishments	55
1.9.3	The practice and politics of earmarking	56
1.10	Trust Funds' Fragmentation Issues	58

Chapter 2

Legal Bases of Trust Funds and Their Contractual Relationships with Donors and Trustees	63
2.1 Introduction	63
2.1.1 Trust funds founded by multilateral treaties whose exclusive purpose is to establish a trust: a hierarchy of instruments	64
2.1.1.1 The boundaries between treaty-based and resolution-based funds: a theoretical perspective	68
2.1.2 Trust funds originating as provisions in treaties	70
2.1.3 The formation of trusts on the basis of implied powers of an inter-governmental organisation or treaty organ	74
2.2 Trust funds as accounts	75
2.2.1 Interim trust fund accounts	76
2.2.2 Permanent trust fund accounts and sub-accounts: The IMF special facilities paradigm	77
2.2.3 United Nations special accounts	84
2.2.3.1 Special accounts and trust funds of the UN General Assembly	85
2.2.3.2 Special accounts and trust funds of the UN Security Council	87
2.2.3.3 Special accounts and trust funds of the UN Secretary-General	90
2.3 Mixed funds under the legal wings of an existing international organisation and domestic law	93
2.4 Funds as quasi inter-governmental organisations through negotiated ad hoc agreements: Contractual relationships	95
2.5 Single-donor trust funds	97
2.5.1 Single-donor state trusts with externally-contracted trustees	97
2.5.2 Single-donor state trusts subject to international law	98
2.6 The contractual relationship between the fund, its donors and the trustee	99
2.6.1 The deposit of the donation is not a unilateral act devoid of obligation	100
2.6.2 The donor agreement	103
2.6.3 Donor agreements with private entities	106
2.6.4 The trustee (administration) agreement and the agreement by which a trust fund assumes the role of a financing mechanism	107
2.6.4.1 Jurisdiction in respect of disputes arising from administration agreements	110
2.7 Can an international trust be set up by means of a private contract?	111

Chapter 3

The International Legal Personality of Trust Funds	113
3.1 Introduction	113
3.2 Trust funds as objective intergovernmental organisations	114
3.2.1 The intention to transform a fund into an international organisation? The case of the global fund for AIDS, TB and malaria	115
3.3 Trust funds as full international organisations	120
3.4 Trust funds as limited international organisations	124
3.4.1 Is the IMF a trust fund?	125
3.5 Trust funds as subsidiary organs	127

3.5.1	Trust funds as both UN subsidiary organs and international organisations: The case of UNICEF	128
3.5.2	Variations of funds as subsidiary organs	129
3.6	Trust funds as informal conferences without any legal personality	131
3.7	The legal personality of trust fund accounts	133
3.7.1	The contractual powers of trust funds	135
3.7.2	The performance of quasi-judicial functions by trust funds	138
3.7.3	Implied powers of trust funds	140
3.7.4	Enforcement powers and collective action against the fund	142
3.7.4.1	Enforcement powers of the trustee and the trust's executive organ	142
3.7.4.2	Collective action against the World Bank as trustee before the bank's inspection panel	145
3.8	Tax exemptions	147
3.9	Liabilities	149
3.9.1	The donors' personal liability	154
3.9.2	The absence of a clear corporate governance vision	156
3.10	Immunities from jurisdiction	158
3.11	Dissolution of trust funds	163
3.12	Succession	167
 Chapter 4
	Fund Governance Models: Trustee and Fiduciary Duties	169
4.1	Introduction	169
4.2	Types of governance models on the basis of disbursement-making powers	171
4.2.1	Three-tier governance model wherein trustee does not possess decision- making powers	171
4.2.2	Three-tier governance model wherein trustee possesses co-decision making powers	174
4.2.3	Two-tier governance structure wherein trustee exercises no decision- making powers	175
4.2.4	Governance model wherein trustee exercises co-decision making powers	176
4.2.5	The fund's executive organ acting as trustee	178
4.2.6	Governance models where the trustee exercises full decision-making powers	180
4.2.7	Voting rights and powers	181
4.3	The legal nature of the trustee's duties towards the donors	184
4.3.1	The fine line between international trust, international agency and partnership arrangement: The case of the Prototype Carbon Fund	187
4.4	The legal nature of fiduciary duties to the beneficiaries: The existence or not of enforceable beneficiary rights	190
4.4.1	Trusts with named beneficiaries?	196
4.4.1.1	International compensation funds	200
4.4.1.2	Special beneficiary rights in international environmental law	202
4.4.2	Evaluation and disbursement criteria	203
4.4.3	Conclusion on the trustee's duties: Is it still a trust?	205
4.5	Specific duties of the trustee	206

4.5.1	Ownership of the trust fund's assets	207
4.5.2	The duty to keep separate accounts	210
4.5.3	Duty of care	211
4.5.4	The duty to invest and reinvest	213
4.5.5	Conflicts of interest and self-dealing	216
4.5.6	The duty to report	220
4.5.6.1	The trust's monitoring agent	221
4.6	Donors' obligations to the trustee: Administrative cost recovery and fees	222
 Chapter 5
The Democratic, Budgetary, Environmental, Developmental and Wealth Sharing Functions of Trust Funds		225
5.1	Introduction	225
5.2	Trust funds and participatory democracy	226
5.2.1	Participatory budgeting	227
5.2.2	Participatory governance and the concept of local ownership	229
5.3	The role of trust funds in revenue sharing and fiscal management	232
5.3.1	Fiscal management trust funds: The World Bank-imposed Chad oil revenue management plan	234
5.3.1.1	Trust fund lessons learned from the Chad experience	238
5.3.2	Revenue sharing and the role of trust funds	240
5.4	The employment of trust funds for national and regional fiscal stability	245
5.4.1	Trust funds and the 2008 global financial crisis	246
5.4.2	Stabilisation trust funds	249
5.4.2.1	Multilateral stabilisation funds for small-scale economies	250
5.4.2.2	National Stabilisation Funds	251
5.5	The endowment effect: Do trust funds spur economic growth?	253
5.6	The anti-corruption potential of trust funds	255
5.7	The developmental, human rights and poverty-alleviation effect of trust funds	259
5.8	Environmental trust funds	262
5.8.1	Common but differentiated responsibilities and funding of incremental costs	263
5.8.2	Greenhouse gas emissions trading through trusts	267
5.9	Intergenerational trusts	273
 Table of Cases		277
Table of Treaties		281
Table of Legislation		291
Institutional Law of International Organisations		295
General Index		299