
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

While doing research and writing this book I received immense support and valuable comments from a number of people and was privileged that several Institutions opened their doors and resources to me.

First and foremost I wish to thank and express my respect for Professor Filip De Ly, who offered guidance and wrote the Foreword. I am indebted to Associate Professor Xandra Kramer. Her unmistakable, continuous support and constructive comments helped elicit the final text. I am grateful to Hans van Loon, Secretary General of the Hague Conference on Private International Law, for the opportunity to assist the HCCH's valuable work during the diplomatic negotiations for the Worldwide Jurisdiction Project.

The Swiss Institute for Comparative Law in Lausanne and the Max Planck Institut für Ausländisches und Internationales Privatrecht, Hamburg, gave me access to countless valuable sources which greatly contributed to the book. Thanks to Professor Richard Garnett and the Melbourne University Law School I had the opportunity to gain valuable insights on the common law during my stay as visiting scholar. Je tiens à remercier les membres du Groupe de Travail Contrats Internationaux qui me rappellent à chaque réunion qu'il existera toujours une différence entre la théorie et la pratique.

From the Department of Private International Law and Comparative Law of Erasmus School of Law I want to thank Walthera Hudig-van Lennep with whom I had the privilege of sharing intensive lecturing duties and Laura van Bockhove, Abiola Makinwa, Andrada Tiru and Jasna Arsić-Dapo.

Special thanks to Camille Chartiot for the cover-design and to Hilmar Requena for her conscientious editing work.

I got by with a little (big) help from my friends: Teun Struycken jr., Jeremy Kingsley, Thomas Keijser, Tanya Greeves, Simon Ponten, Marie Sophie van Muyden, Miklós Redner, Gabry Vanderveen and last but not least, my precious Cathalijne van der Plas, Sander Uittenbogaard, and my brother Nils van Lith.

My father's advice made me consider starting this project in the first place, my mother's endless energy gave me the necessary basic tools to complete it. I dedicate this book to both of them. As for Simon, he told me he did nothing, but he kept encouraging me to finish with those final words: the end.

I have tried to state the law as on 1 November 2008.
