
PREFACE & ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The establishment of international courts to prosecute alleged war criminals is an important achievement and correspondingly the defence of these accused deserves careful consideration. Although this book bears my name, it would never have come about without the support of others. As it is impossible to thank all of them personally, I will single out a few.

I am grateful for the generous financial support of the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research (NWO). Of my colleagues of the University of Amsterdam's Criminal Law Department and the Amsterdam Center for International Law, I would like to thank Harmen van der Wilt, who brought up the original idea to research this subject, and Göran Sluiter, for their continuous support and inspiration throughout these years. I thank Eugène Sutorius for his support in the early stages of this research. I would like to thank Yale Law School for giving me many academic opportunities as a visiting researcher. Mirjan Damaška's book 'The Faces of Justice and State Authority' has been a cornerstone of this research project. Discussing my research with him in New Haven was an honour and inspiration. Howard Morrison I thank for introducing me to many at the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda (ICTR) in Arusha. I thank him even more for his infinite commitment to making language corrections to this book. To his colleague John Pini QC who assisted him in this time-consuming undertaking, I am also grateful. I am thankful to the ICTR for welcoming me as a visiting researcher and to everyone I have interviewed in Arusha in 2004 for enabling me to get a proper view of the actual functioning of defence counsel in international criminal law. I have benefitted from the help of Catina Tanner from the Communications Office of the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia, the librarians from the Peace Palace Library, from the Library of the Law School of the University of Amsterdam and of the Lillian Goldman Law Library at Yale Law School, and from the staff of the Max Planck Institute for International Criminal Law in Freiburg im Breisgau. For their helpful and perceptive comments on the penultimate manuscript of this book I am indebted to Bert Swart, Taru Spronken, Guénaél Mettraux, Salvatore Zappalà and André Nollkaemper.

It was invaluable to share all the ups and downs of my project with my friends and colleagues, in particular Britta van Beers, Floor Fleurke and Annemieke van Verseveld. I am indebted to my parents, my brother Hinne, and my grandmother Pé who have never ceased to support and encourage me. Micha has been my first and foremost inspiration to do what I aspire, at any level. For that and making 'egg Florentine' a regular breakfast while I was working on this book, I can never thank him enough.
